

TABLE OF CONTENTS

VOLUME 58, 1988

NUMBER 1, MARCH

GORMAN, O. T.
The dynamics of habitat use in a guild of Ozark minnows	1-18
MORTON, S. R., AND D. W. DAVIDSON.
Comparative structure of harvester ant communities in arid Australia and North America	19-38
REDFEARN, A., AND S. L. PIMM.
Population variability and polyphagy in herbivorous insect communities	39-55

NUMBER 2, JUNE

SPILLER, D. A., AND T. W. SCHOENER.
An experimental study of the effect of lizards on web-spider communities	57-77
ANDERSON, R. A., AND W. H. KARASOV.
Energetics of the lizard Cnemidophorus tigris and life history consequences of food-acquisition mode	79-110
ARCHER, S., C. SCIFRES, C. R. BASSHAM, AND R. MAGGIO.
Autogenic succession in a subtropical savanna: conversion of grassland to thorn woodland	111-127
JOHNSON, C. R., AND K. H. MANN.
Diversity, patterns of adaptation, and stability of Nova Scotian kelp beds	129-154

NUMBER 3, SEPTEMBER

RIGGAN, P. J., S. GOODE, P. M. JACKS, AND R. N. LOCKWOOD.
Interaction of fire and community development in chaparral of southern California	155-176
MCDOWELL, W. H., AND G. E. LIKENS.
Origin, composition, and flux of dissolved organic carbon in the Hubbard Brook Valley	177-195
WINKLER, M. G.
Paleolimnology of a Cape Cod kettle pond: diatoms and reconstructed pH	197-214
NAEEM, S.
Resource heterogeneity fosters coexistence of a mite and a midge in pitcher plants	215-227

NUMBER 4, DECEMBER

SCHLUTER, D.
The evolution of finch communities on islands and continents: Kenya vs Galápagos	229-249
LEVEY, D. J.
Spatial and temporal variation in Costa Rican fruit and fruit-eating bird abundance	251-269
MURRAY, K. G.
Avian seed dispersal of three neotropical gap-dependent plants	271-298
POUNDS, J. A.
Ecomorphology, locomotion, and microhabitat structure: patterns in a tropical mainland Anolis community	299-320
REED, D. C., D. R. LAUR, AND A. W. EBELING.
Variation in algal dispersal and recruitment: the importance of episodic events	321-335
SAUNDERS, III, J. F., AND W. M. LEWIS, JR.
Dynamics and control mechanisms in a tropical zooplankton community (Lake Valencia, Venezuela)	337-353